

U.S. Army Materiel Command
General Ann E. Dunwoody
Commanding General

General Ann E. Dunwoody is the Commanding General, U.S. Army Materiel Command. AMC is one of the largest Army commands with more than 70,000 employees and has a presence in or impacts all 50 states and 155 countries.

General Dunwoody was commissioned as a Quartermaster officer after graduating from the State University of New York at Cortland. During her career, she has served in Southwest Asia, Germany and throughout the United States.

Her principal staff assignments include service as the 82d Airborne Division Parachute Officer, where she deployed to Desert Shield and Desert Storm; Strategic Planner for the Chief of Staff of the Army (CSA) and Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics (Army G-4), Headquarters, United States Army.

General Dunwoody has commanded at every level. As a senior leader, she commanded the 10th Division Support Command at Fort Drum, New York; the 1st Corps Support Command at Fort Bragg, North Carolina; the Military Traffic Management Command/Military Surface Deployment and Distribution Command in Alexandria, Virginia; and the Combined Arms Support Command at Fort Lee, Virginia.

She holds a Master of Science Degree in Logistics Management from the Florida Institute of Technology and a Master of Science Degree in National Resource Strategy from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces.

General Dunwoody has been married to Colonel Craig Brotchie, USAF (Retired) for 21 years. They have one puppy, Barney.